Around the Town — Yoo-Hoo

This is not in the nature of a complaint to Lieut.-Gen. Ben Lear—who a year ago disciplined his Second Army boys for yoo-hooing at some slack-clad girls—but the report which I have to make is indicative of how these times are proving a shock to complacent middle-age. The story goes like this—

British, Nazis, Reds Exchange Aerial Blows

Russians Report Continued Slaughter of Germans on Long Front

By the Associated Press

Tempestuous aerial blows ranging from Arctic Murmansk to Germany's industrial Ruhr valley and the white cliffs of Dover were reported Thursday as Prime Minister Winston Churchill sounded a rare note of optimism with the declaration that the Allies "cannot lose this war except through our own fault."

On the Russian front Soviet dispatches told a story of mounting German slaughter along the vast battle-lines while a bulletin from Adolf Hitler's headquarters acknowledged a fresh wave of Red army assaults.

During the night RAF warplanes "very heavily bombed" German war foundations in the Ruhr valley, the air ministry announced and pounded the German U-boat base at St. Nazaire on the Nazi occupied French coast.

The magnitude of the offensive was indicated by the air ministry's acknowledgment that 11 RAF bombers were lost.

Vichy reported that RAF planes also "stormed" Paris in a 90 minute pamphlet raid warning that they would return to bomb French factories working for Hitler's war machine.

The Nazis high command said German night raiders attacked Dover on the southeast English coast inflicting "great damage" to military installations.

Soviet dispatches reported that 66 German planes raided the Arctic port of Murmansk, key Soviet base for arrival of U. S. war supplies, and that more than 100 planes, raided the Arctic port of Murmansk, key Soviet base for arrival of U. S. war supplies, and that more than 100 planes, raided the Arctic port of Murmansk, key Soviet base for arrival of U. S. war supplies.

Says Lack of Sabotage Means Something Underfoot

By FRED S. FERGUSON
President of NEA Service

SAN FRANCISCO—One sure-fire reason for being certain that there is a well-organized plan for sabotage in the United States, particularly on both coasts is to be found in the fact that to date there hasn't been any sabotage. Considering that there are 93,000 Japanese, including both alien and American-born, in California alone, there certainly would have been sporadic outbreaks, fires or what not, brought about by zealous aliens, but for some organized control. And the absence of such attempts at sabotage is what keeps the Pacific Coast authorities moving on the Japanese problem, and leads to rumors that the big organized outbreak may be expected around the middle of April.

Additional arrests occur daily, all up and down the coast, as well as in this immediate area. All of the old stories of the menace of the Japanese fishing boats which moved so freely in California waters in the past have been proven true. There were a lot of Californians who didn't like those stories at the time, because they cast doubt on the loyalty of American-born Japs.

But except for a negligible minority, which insist upon remaining idealistic and loving all the human race in spite of war or anything else, there is unanimity for moving all Japs away from the war zone, American-born or not. And there are to be no exceptions, although many of the more trusting have volunteered to be held personally responsible for a pet Jap or two, if they could just be permitted to remain.

Meanwhile the work of preparing move the Japs and establish them

No Loafers Listed

Eventually every man registered for selective service will get a questionnaire asking him what he can do. As every one knows the battle of production must be won before the battles of Britain or the Atlantic, of Australia can be marked down as victories. Therefore, the government must know what we can do.

This four-page questionnaire carries many queries and a list of occupations from airplane fabric worker to wire drawer. Then there are such relatively unknown jobs as armorer, habbitier, cork maker, dynamic balancer, and tube bender. It takes all these and many more kinds of workers to win the war, but nowhere in the list will you find loner, orator, drugstore cowboy or carstune collector. But there is one square reading "do not have a job and am not looking for work."

This data will fill the files of the United States Employment Service and the National Roster of Scientific and Specialized Personnel so that we know just where we stand in regard to skilled workers and professional people. The government now has no power to shift workers to jobs where they might be more useful although some members of congress are beginning to mention the word "compulsion."

Naturally, most of the people and most of congress shy away from any sort of compulsory work service and by persuasion and patriotism can do the job, there will be no commands for a Puduich plumber to leave home and hearth and pull up stakes for San Diego.

But if the war goes against us, if we begin losing the battle of production, if serious shortages develop in some trades and skills, if there are too many bricklayers in Omaha and not enough in Norfolk, then something stronger than words may be used.

This questionnaire will be a complete file on every male between 18 and 65 when completed and will serve as an invaluable roster of just who we can do what, how long they have been doing it and where they can be found.

Compilation of the list and its intended use once more define the difference between our side and our way of life and the whip-cracking policies of our foes. Here we ask workers what they can do, and ask them to take a job where their labor will be of greatest benefit in the war effort.

In the axis countries, they are told what to do and when to do it. To refuse is another way to commit sui-

Labor Leaders Warn Against Legislation

Assert Move Would Start 'Undeclared War Among Ourselves'

WASHINGTON — (AP) — William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor and Phillip Murray, CIO chief, jointly advised congress Thursday against passing labor legislation which might start an "undeclared war among ourselves" and divide the nation into groups fighting each other.

In a statement prepared for presentation before the house committee they assailed the bill to suspend closed shops and extra pay for overtime in war plants and said it was dictated by labor enemies.

"I charge that supporters of this bill are now waging an undeclared war against President Roosevelt and workers of America who believe in policies of his administration," Green said.

Murray declared the Naval Committee had the responsibility of correcting misinformation that "has been sponsored and fostered by anti-labor groups."

Arnold Labor View Disowned

Attorney General Raps His Outspoken Assistant

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Biddle rapped the knuckles of Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold Wednesday for accusing organized labor of "injuring and destroying" independent business and of holding farmers and consumers "at its mercy."

In response to questions at a press conference he said he thought Arnolds "comment was pretty unfortunate at this time" and that it did not represent his views of the Justice Department. Arnold, head of the Anti-Trust Division, made his remarks last Saturday during a hearing before the House Judiciary Committee.

To Ask Bids on Water Works

$65,000 Project to Get Under Way for City of Hope

FORT WORTH, Texas — Bids for contracts to construct waterworks and sewer improvements for the city of Hope are scheduled to be opened at 10 a. m. April 8, by the city officials, George F. Harley, regional engineer for the Federal Works Agency, announced here Thursday.

The waterworks contract provides for a new well, a concrete ground storage tank, pumps, and additions to the distribution system. The project is estimated to cost $65,000 and is to be financed by a $45,000 federal grant and a $20,000 loan.

The sewage system improvement contract calls for extension and replacements of the present facilities. The project is estimated to cost $18,000 and will be financed by a federal grant.

Both projects have been made necessary by the heavy increase in population resulting from war activities in the area, Harley said.

EASTON, Penn. — (AP) — Hundreds of pounds of dynamite exploded prematurely at a limestone quarry of the Lehigh Portland Cement company Thursday morning killing at least 29 men and shaking the countryside for miles around.

Investigators said death may reach 32.

The explosives were attached on trucks on the ground and around the rim of the pit. Most of those killed were eating mid-morning lunch when the blast let go about 9:30 EWT.

Sixteen other men were at work in the bottom of the pit and escaped injury.

The blast was felt as far away as 50 miles. Windows were shattered in homes and buildings in an 18 mile area.

'Cannot Lose' Churchill Says

Warns Allies About Own Faults in an Address

LONDON — (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill declared Thursday that the Allies "cannot lose this war" except through our own faults or our one failure to use the combined strengths and to use multiplying opportunities that will present themselves to us.

Addressing the annual meet of the conservative party he said:

"I cannot offer any guarantee that we are at the end of our misfortune. It would be foolish for us not to be prepared for further heavy blows but as last year I warned you that we could not have successes unchecked by reverses, so now in 1942 we do not expect to have reverses unreleased by successes."

British Speed Negotiations With India

Two Chinese Armies Reported Invading Thailand to Aid Burma

By the Associated Press

Japanese capture of strategic Andaman Islands sending a tongue of flame leaping to India spurred negotiations for mobilization of India's $90 millions on the side of the Allies Thursday as the situation for the battle of Burma grew ever more critical.

Attempting to relieve pressure on Allied forces in central Burma, two strong Chinese columns were reported to have invaded Japanese-occupied Thailand at two points.

Thailand adjoins northern Burma. Sir Stafford Cripps, special British envoy, sped a series of conferences with Indian leaders in an attempt to iron out India's long smoldering internal friction and weld the dominion's manpower into a united fighting force for the Allies.

Japs Enter India Problem

Countering British pledges of greater freedom Japan entered the struggle for control of India's millions with the announcement of an Axis sponsored movement for Indian independence.

The Berlin radio broadcast a Tokyo dispatch saying representatives of the Indian Independence Party from Hongkong, Malaya, Thailand and Shanghai, all under Japan's thumb, are to convene in Tokyo on March 28.

"Definite measure will be undertaken in aid of the Indian independence movement," the broadcast said.

Rationing to Insure Sugar

Move Is Effort to Prevent Wasteful Use in United States

One reason given for rationing sugar now, according to Miss Mary Claude Fletcher, County Home Demonstration Agent, is to ensure reasonable amounts for home canning when the canning season arrives.

Reasonable amounts, Miss Fletcher explains, will probably mean less fruit canned in heavy syrup and fewer containers of jams, jellies, and preserves.

There are, however, many ways to economize on sugar during the canning season, the home demonstration agent points out, and lists the following suggestions prepared by Miss Mary E. Loughhead of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture:

Fruits can be canned in their own juices and then sweetened when they are used. If they are heated when opened, the sugar will dissolve and be absorbed so that no more sugar will be required than would be necessary at the time of canning. Canned fruits are often made into desserts and can be sweetened at the time of making the dessert.

Unsweetered fruit juice can be canned and made into jelly later. Jelly makes a bigger drain on the sugar bin than fruit butter and many of the fruit preserves, so the sugar allotment will probably not allow many containers of jelly.

Fruit pulp can also be canned unsweetened and made into butter or used as a base for marmalade later on. Some of the weekly allowance of sugar could then be used to make up the "spreads for breads" if sorghum and other table syrups are used frequently in the meantime.

Dried fruits do not require as much sugar to sweeten to taste as canned ones do. They also make a good base for fruit butters and marmalades.

"Good planning of the food preservation budget will help to stretch the sugar allowance," the Extension specialist in foods and nutrition concludes.

Lack of Rubber Also Has Effect on Homemakers

Home Agent Advises Housewives to Conserve Elastic Fabrics

Hempstead County homemakers can stretch the life of household rubber articles and of elastic fabrics by guarding against the three big rubber enemies, heat, light, and oil or grease, advises Miss Mary Claude Fletcher, county home demonstration agent.

In passing out pointers for preserving rubber articles, Miss Mary Claude Fletcher states that the higher the temperature, the more quickly rubber gets weak, cracks, and becomes sticky. Sunlight is especially harmful because it combines the destructive action of both heat and light, while rubber, left in contact with oil or grease very long, swells and becomes weak, she says.

rics such as foundation garments, the home demonstration agent states that it is more easily damaged by oil and grease than other kinds of rubber. If these garments are worn next to the skin the body oils may cause them to weaken unless they are washed frequently.

Rubber goods can be kept clean with warm water or with water and soap, and any kind of soap can be used on articles made solely of rubber, according to rubber-preserving suggestions sent the home demonstration agent by Mrs. Ida A. Fenton of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture.

Other suggestions on rubber care listed by the Extension economist in home management are as follows:

In cleaning garments that are part fabric, a mild soap should be used for the fabric's sake. All rubber articles or garments should be dried in a cool or only moderately warm place, never near a radiator, stove, or hot pipe. They should not be exposed to direct sunlight, and if they must be ironed, pressed as lightly as possible.

Any garment containing rubber should never be dry cleaned. If it is impossible to remove oil, grease, or tar from rubber with soap and water, a dry-cleaning fluid can be used to remove them. The rubber should be sponged lightly with the fluid, and even in stubborn cases, the rubber should never be left in fluid more than 2 or 3 minutes. It is necessary to be very careful with rubber while it has the fluid on it since it is weak, then and tears more easily. An efficient and non-inflammable cleaning fluid that may be used is carbon tetrachloride. If any other dry-cleaning fluid is used, special care should be taken to see that it evaporates quickly and leaves no deposit as it evaporates. A gasoline motor fuel should never be used for cleaning rubber.

For longer life, rubber should be stored in a cool, dark place when not in use. If the storage spot is not dark, the rubber should be wrapped in thick paper, or put in a covered box. The rubber article should be stored in as natural a position as possible. If it must be folded, the surfaces that come in contact with each other should be dusted with talcum powder or cornstarch.

We, the Women

"I'm in the Army Now" Isn't Excuse for Not Writing Home

By RUTH MILLETT

As a college student he didn't write home very often. His dad used to get red in the face occasionally and mutter something about not sending his monthly check if he couldn't be bothered to write home once in a while.

And on several occasions he went so long without sending even a postcard home that his parents called him to find out if he was all right—even though they really couldn't afford long distance calls.

Well, he's in the army now. And if he isn't better about letter writing than he was in his college days, his mother and dad are going to put in many anxious hours.

Shouldn't Cause Worry Needlessly

The first thing that will occur to his folks if he goes a long time without writing is that he may be on his way to some foreign country.

They'll worry and wonder and fret is the way parents are. So he ought to write them from time to time—until they hear from him—because that to them—as well as to his country—for he has just as much responsibility for keeping up his family's morale as they have of his—write home often.

Not only that, he ought to say something in the letters he does write. His family is anxious to know what he is doing and learning, what he thinks of the part of the country he is in, how he spends his free hours. If he writes often and takes time to say something when he does write, they won't feel that he is so far away.

There will be times later, probably, when he can't always write. Times when his mother and dad must endure suspense. But he shouldn't make them worry when there is no need for it.

Of course he's okay and getting a long fine. He knows it—and so it doesn't seem important. But it's important to his family that they know it, too.

Morals During the War Period

High Divorce Rate Follows After the War

Wide World Features
SAN FRANCISCO—There are some misfortunes of war that won't appear in the official communiqués but which Americans will have to "take" along with the rest.

Already they are becoming apparent to Henry M. Grant, director of the Family Relations Center here. He lists them as:

A general loosening of personal morals.

Widespread dislocation of normal romantic relationships of the younger generation.

A high divorce rate immediately after the war.

Spread of social diseases.

For many years Grant has counseled men and women on intimate problems of their family or personal lives. He works under a board of distinguished medical men and sociologists.

"Soldiers as a class are reckless in their personal relationships and always have been," Grant says. "They enter into sex relations lightly and get married lightly. They consider they are going to war anyway, possibly to be killed, and they may as well have a good time while they can. And why blame them?"

"A primary result of such activity is the spread of disease, and the venereal disease rate in the army averages is going up."

"The boy who thinks he is really in love and marries of course presents a more wholesome picture, but it would be folly to suppose that these war marriages are as stable as even the highly unstable average American marriage."

"When he comes back from war the soldier is going to be changed mentally and emotionally. Many World War marriages simply didn't work, and divorces in 1920 and 1921 increased very sharply."

Should the American death rate in the war be high, Grant foresees a grave social problem in the unmarried woman. In a temporary sense, he says, this will exist if millions of men are concentrated in camps or sent overseas.

A long step could be made toward control of disease and the easing of other sex problems, he believes, if the United States would adopt both the attitude and the laws of the Scandinavian countries. He defines this in brief this way: Miscellaneous sexual relationships are an individual's own business, but transmission of disease is a concern of the state and a crime. Public opinion in this country is not ready for that view, he concedes.

Those Vigilantes Watch False Alarms

PUEBLO, Colo. —(AP)—A citizens' vigilante committee—like the ones that went after horse thieves—has been organized in Pueblo to deal with a rising number of false fire alarms. The citizens have been assigned to various districts of the city to "spot" persons who pull alarm boxes. Club members said the fire conservation program and the scarcity of materials for fire apparatus repairs make the elimination of unnecessary fire runs imperative.

The stage route, started in 1756 between New York and Philadelphia, took three days to make the trip.

Preacher Visits Father Devine

Will Tell of Visit at Tabernacle Thursday Night

"The Signs of Christ Soon Return" is the sermon title for the Thursday night service in the revival meeting conducted by Evangelist and Mrs. Bird H. Campbell at the Hope Gospel Tabernacle. The Rev. Campbell announced Wednesday that he would tell during Thursday night's sermon of his visit to the New York "heaven" of Father Divine, New York negro, whose followers call "God." Mr. Campbell says this is definitely a sign of the times in which we live.

Miss Betty Campbell arrived Wednesday to join her parents in the Tabernacle revival. She appeared on the program Wednesday night, and will participate in the services Thursday and Friday nights.

The evangelist Wednesday night, struck out at what he termed, "Cold, lifeless, dead, dry religion," saying that it definitely did not meet the need of men today. "The Church is more than a social club. It has its place in the society of men, but it is not just a place to meet friends; to make social contacts; to go in order to be respectable, but the Church is where men should find Christ. And where they should find the solution to life's problems," he said.

PIERRE, S. D. —(A)— Want to give a rattlesnake the jitters? Jump up and down on the ground near him. It scares him half to death. A. M. The more snakes they killed, the more appeared. Jackley said the vibrations of the truck drove the snakes from mouse and gopher burrows. The men tallied up 77 snakes from the five acres.

Harrison in Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON, NEA Service Correspondent

Fay Faces Fortune With Her Face

HOLLYWOOD — Three movie-makers are sitting at a night club table. "Who's the beautiful dame that looks like Claire Trevor?" one asks. "The gal in red, with the Navy officer." "All I know," says a second, "is that from wherever I sit she looks more like Garbo than I thought." "You're both nuts," chuckles the third. "She really looks like Helen Hayes. And for another thing, Bill, she worked in a picture of yours last year. Name's Fay Helm. And that is her husband."

"Fay—you mean that lovely dish played a wild-eyed, stringy-haired old hag?"

"Yeah, she's the youngest character actress in town."

Triple Play
When Fay Helm came here in 1936, at the age of 22, she hadn't any predetermined notions about the type of roles she'd play. On western stages she had done ingenue parts. In Hollywood three things happened almost simultaneously: She took a screen test at Metro, signed on a radio program, and was cast as the spitfire girl Communist in a road company of "Tovarich."

Everything was dandy except that the test script called for a Helen Hayes-ish sort of performance, which Miss Helm gave so ably that David Selznick turned her down for too closely resembling Miss Hayes. It was quite a while afterward that she finally made a start in movies, with "Song of the City" at Metro. In 1938 she went to Warners for "Racket Bust" and found herself made up as a middle-aged woman with skinned-back hair and odd-looking clothes.

Fear Present

in permanent settlements goes on, and as you get into the details passing through the organization of Tom Clark, Civilian Co-ordinator for General De Witt, in command of the Pacific Coast area, the more involved the problem becomes. The Federal Reserve Bank is now in the picture, acting as banker, legal adviser and virtually trustee for the Japs.

Japanese Investments Are Well Protected

They are protected in every way possible against loss through hasty sales of property. If a Jap owns an apartment building, for instance—and there are many who do—it will be operated for him while he is away and the income, minus operating costs, will be turned over to him. If he owns a farm, it will be leased for him.

After the Japs are moved from the immediate cost to the "processing" areas, then will come the job of organizing communities. To have a self-sustaining community you have to have people who do a lot of different things.

You need doctors, dentists, grocery store keepers, garage men, farmers, common labor, electricians, and so on and on. And the Army and Civilian Committee intend to thus classify the Japs at the processing centers and then distribute them to the best advantage of each newly established community. There will, however, be no separation of families.

Japanese Plow Crops Under

There is a pressure in all directions with respect to the Japs; pressure to hurry them away from the Coast, regardless of arrangements, and minority pressure to slow up on the American-born, and possibly make exceptions. But all Japs look alike to the responsible authorities in this instance, and while it is realized that some who are loyal Americans may suffer, exceptions are not to be made. Leaders of the associations of loyal Japanese accept this situation, too, without question and are prepared to leave as proof of their loyalty and desire to cooperate.

Destruction of crops by Jap farmers reached the point where General De Witt considered it advisable to issue an order proclaiming that the plowing under of crops would be regarded as sabotage, and treated accordingly. At the same time attempts to take financial advantage of the Japs by purchasing their crops, leases, or businesses for little or nothing, became prevalent enough to bring a warning that the evacuees were to be given a square deal and the Federal Reserve stepped in.

There are 85,000 Germans and Italians to be dealt with in California, Oregon and Washington. Many are to be found in university faculties and in various other lines of work. There are scads of Italians in the California vineyards. These cases will be handled by special boards, but the disposition is to move all unnaturalized enemy aliens from the defense zone.

That's the new war time edict at Midland College, where a "song of the week" program has been devised as a morale builder. Each week a favorite song will be sung, whistled, hummed or played at every convocation or meeting.

Commented Choir Director Oscar

Also, Make 'Em Quit Cracking the Sack

LETTERS to the Editor

Thomas Cannon Writes

Editor, The Star:

Have you room in the Star for a letter from another hometown boy in the service? I'd just like to say "hello" to all the folks and tell them I'm O. K. This is a great life if you don't weaken and I certainly intend to get my share of Japs before that happens.

I miss Hope, naturally, and all the folks there. Now I understand how the boys who left before I did felt when they asked for more news from home. A few old copies of the Star would certainly be appreciated.

You would have to be here with me to understand the real attitude of the Marine Corps. Maybe I can give you a rough idea. To the last man, the Marines will avenge their buddies who were at Wake Island, Pearl Harbor and the other places. We're proud of them, and thousands Japs for each Marine we lost will never pay that debt. Of course the Army and Navy are both anxious to do their bit, but the Marine Corps has a score of its own to settle. And believe you me, it can and is doing that little job pretty thoroughly.

All we ask is that you folks at home keep your chins up, continue to send us the stuff we need and we'll do the job. Maybe not tomorrow because this is a big job we've set out to do, but sooner or later the "Rising Sun" is going into a long, long eclipse.

I don't need to ask about the Band. Why? Because I know the boys and girls who make it up and there isn't a finer group in the world. With the Band Mothers Club behind them, Mr. Chandler leading them, I know they will continue to be the band I like to claim as "my" band.

Signing off now from Hawaii and "Remember Wake Island!"

For home-made tape for protection against shattering window glass, fix a paste out of 6 ounces of wheat flour, one-half ounce of powdered alum, a quarter of a pint of corn syrup and two pints of water. Boil this mixture and use it with strips of old bed sheets or muslin. It saves adhesive tape.

Funny Man in a Comeback

This Country Needs Something to Combat War Jitters

Wide World Features
SARASOTA, Fla. — The clown is making a comeback under the big top.

Long a circus fixture, the "Tambark Pagliacci" gradually had been pushed into the back-ground by more glamorous stars and features, until, in recent years clown acts were little more than fillers for unavoidable pauses.

But all that has been changing in the 1942 version of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus.

"This country needs something to help combat the war jitters. That is what we attempt to give," says John Ringling North, executive head of the show.

And that's where the funny men come in—or back.

Two of the dozen "new super features" will give clownes the center ring. One new act burlesques "The Marriage of Gargantua and Toto," the gorilla couple. Another features a ludicrous gent billed as "Harry, the five-story clown."

This does not mean, however, that scores of big show standbys will be missing. They'll all be there, but in new dress.

The feature "spec" (sometimes called the walk-around) will be as colorful as ever, but pump and pantygraphy have been subordinated to humor and gaiety in that opener.

Fifty elephants and a battalion of girls will appear in what circus press agents refer to as a pachyderm fantasy, "The Ballet of the Elephants."

Fitting ballet costumes on an elephant herd—well it can and was done!

Re-styling extends to the physical makeup of the circus where color and streamlining already have been introduced. The big top itself will stand out in a dazzling red, white and blue dress.

Fans will have to wait a while, though, to see that tent without interior pole supports. Wartime priorities snagged plans for a canvas auditorium supported by towers and cables on the exterior.

"No. itinerary curtailment is contemplated," North declared. "Only one star performer, Belmonte Cristiani of the famous riding family, has been drafted thus far."

Heck, No More Cowboys and Indians?

TOPEKA, Kas. —(A)— A Brooklyn, N. Y., high school girl wrote the chamber of commerce and asked: "What type of dances are done by the people of Kansas this year?" The chamber of commerce secretary said he didn't know how to answer the question, but he plans to write and inform her "Kansas aren't wearing feathers on their heads any more."

Tin Cans to Be Plentiful for Essential Foods

Reduction in Manufacture to Aid All Necessary Products

Hempstead County Farm homemakers were assured this week by Miss Mary E. Loughhead of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, that the reduction in the manufacture and use of tin cans, recently ordered by the War Production Board, would result in an increase in the number of tin cans available for the pack of important canned foods.

Quoting information received from Miss Mary E. Loughhead of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, Miss Fletcher pointed out that restrictions were placed on the use of tin cans for packing luxury items, specialty products, dog foods, and foods which can be packaged or preserved in other ways. Items for which tin containers will not be available for the duration, at least, include coffee, tobacco, beer, and motor oil.

Restriction of the use of tin containers for these and other items on the restricted list is expected to result in a saving of about 40 per cent of the tin used by the canning industry.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be their kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 2 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatism, pains, leg pains, loss of sleep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with burning and stinging sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes that waste poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

MEXICAN MASQUERADE

By CECIL CARNES

Copyright, 1942
NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Now it can be told—the tale of Allan Steele's strange experience in Mexico. Lower California Peninsula. Allan Steele, a young man, is on his way to his destination. In a one thousand mile journey, he sees a Mexican officer dismount from his horse to examine something by the roadside, only to be attacked by three horsemen. "A holdup!" cries Allan.

CHAPTER II
PROMPTLY Allan went into action. He headed the car down the hill and stepped on the gas. The sedan plunged onward in a series of leaps and bounds. It took all of his strength to keep it on the road.

The officer was holding his own. His blade was longer than the others, and his swordsmanship was superb. He parried slash after slash, and when opportunities came, he thrust wickedly at the foe. It was pretty fencing. Allan had time to think how much the spectacle resembled a scene from "The Three Musketeers," and almost regretted that he and the sedan were about to introduce the modernistic runner touch to a picture so romantic.

He had time, too, for a fleeting memory of the Chief's farewell admonition the morning they parted in San Diego.

"Watch your step, my boy! You'll be on your own down there, you know, and you can't count on much help from us if you get in a spot. So—don't stick your neck out!"

Well—to blazes with all that now! thought Allan. One man attacked by three, and the one was in the uniform of a soldier and the three were a bunch of sloppy, bearded braves—bandits, if he didn't miss his guess. Far back in his line of ancestors was a red-headed Irishman; the Iberian strain was not normally apparent in Allan's behavior, but in a crisis such as this it was apt to take full charge.

He was within yards of it by now. He was not sure what might happen if he went smashing headlong into the swirling knot of men on horseback. The sedan might upset—it might even be hopelessly wrecked! He could not risk that. He didn't know how badly he might need the car, and there was a limit to the extent he could forget the claims of duty. Exasperating—but there it was!

A smooth stretch in the road gave him a chance to free one hand from the wheel and bring it down on the button of his horn. The raucous blare ripped out its warning.

EVEN through the heat of battle the hideous sound carried to the fighters' ears. They sensed their peril, turning their heads to get a flashing vision of the metal juggernaut rushing upon them. It was a sight to shatter the stoutest morale. Instinctively, they acted to save themselves. They drove home their spurs, and their plunging horses carried them off the road to safety as Allan went by in a haze of speed and dust.

He stopped his engine, stepped on the foot brake, jerked the emergency as soon as he dared. Even at that the sedan slewed in a half-circle and came to a screeching stop pointed in the direction of San Saba.

Allan flung open the door beside him, leaped to the road and ran back toward the scene of the fight. There was no fight left. The three braves were already on the point of vanishing around the clump of cactus. Just before he disappeared, the rearward of the trio pulled his steed back on its haunches. He brandished his machete at the officer.

"We'll get you yet!" he shouted furiously. Then he spat one final word that startled Allan by its implications. "Traitor!"

He gave his horse its head and vanished. Allan lowered the revolver he had whipped from his pocket as he ran. A quiet voice

Allan followed the officer's gaze and grunted in surprise. For the first time he observed that the "bundle of rags" contained a human being.

spoke beside him. "Let them go, senior, let them go." At close quarters the officer turned out to be a handsome young fellow with a small neat mustache as black as his eyes. He was twisting the mustache now and there was a glint of good-humored resignation in the eyes. He sighed. "I could have killed them quite easily myself if I had chosen. But—well, after all, they are friends of mine."

"Oh," said Allan blankly. "Afraid I didn't understand." The corners of his mouth twitched. "If those were friends of yours, senior, your enemies must be something to see!"

The Mexican flashed a responsive smile that revealed a set of white teeth, small and regular as in Hollywood. But when he answered his tone was serious. "You are naturally puzzled, yet the fact is as I stated it. They are my friends, and it would have been excessively painful if I had been obliged to kill them to save my own life. Your timely arrival and assistance spared me that."

You have rendered me a very great service, senior, which I will gladly repay if I should have the chance. Now you can render me another by not asking me to explain why friends should have seemed so—so unfriendly."

HE concluded the formal speech with a slight inclination of his body. Allan Steele didn't risk a bow, but he tried to make his nod polite.

"Oh, sure. Your affair, not mine. I shan't dream of asking questions out of turn."

"You speak Spanish very well, senior. Amazingly well for a North American." The black eyes were suddenly dark and cold. "Since that is so, you doubtless understood what that last fellow said to me."

"He called you a traitor," said Allan bluntly.

"Hardly a pleasant epithet when applied to a soldier in the service of his country! I can only assure you he and his comrades are laboring under a misapprehension about me." Then the smoldering anger left his eyes and the amusement returned. "A misapprehension I shall be at some pains to correct before they really do kill me!"

"Yes, I'd correct it if I were you, decidedly!"

"You see," said the officer reflectively, "they do not understand it is no longer possible, in this crazy world we live in today, to judge a man by his words, or even his actions. They will be sorry and ashamed when they learn how close they came to killing me in error." He glanced behind him and added musingly: "They did come close, at that! I've had time to analyze their little stratagem."

Allan followed his gaze and grunted in surprise. For the first time he observed that the "bundle of rags" contained a human being. He was a small man, grizzled, unkempt and unshaven; hatless and barefoot, he was clothed simply in a cotton shirt and trousers.

"They wouldn't risk a shot for fear it might be heard and investigated," explained the soldier. "They thought the three of them could handle me with machetes, and were sure they could if I was on the ground while they were mounted. They knew I was lurking at a small hotel near here and that I am due in San Saba at 3 o'clock. So they caught this man—he is not quite right in his head, poor fellow—stunned him, and placed him here by the road. They knew I would see him and get down to examine him. It all worked out as expected, and when the moment arrived they charged out from behind their ambush—this cactus. Neat, eh?"

Select Simple Coiffure for Easter Season

By BETTY CLARKE
Wide World Beauty Editor

This is the Easter season for you to select a simple coiffure. And don't forget that, as in any other season, you should change the comb and cut of your hair before you buy your bonnet.

Besides beauty, the two practical questions in choosing a new hair-do this year are: 1. Does it go well with the war work you do, or can it be altered to be chic when you're on duty? 2. How much time will it take to keep it neat and attractive daily?

Sure, short hair is the trend—but word for themselves in canning, drying and preserving. The following amount of products represented around 1500 women over the county. A total of 932,917 quarts of fruit, vegetables, meats, preserves, pickles and relishes valued at $1,664,493.40. Total amount of dried products 362,983 pounds valued at $70,891.40. 200,000 bushels of root crops were stored and 10,000 hogs butchered. 40 beehives, 20 lambs, 9,000 gallons of brined vegetables. This is a fine example of what can be accomplished in Hempstead County. With every farm family and urban family who have any space at all to grow a garden mobilizing for war efforts. There can be enough food grown in Hempstead County to take care of every adult and child, white and colored in the county.

some beauties prefer shorter, rather than just plain short hair. Take the 'teen-age and college girls: They seem to be going in for less than a shoulder length with the back brushed into a soft wave then fluffed out. Lots of them like straight bangs with a bit of hair brushed up into a side roll on the right.

A freedom bob designed by M. Louis, New York stylist, is popular with careerists and chic home-bodies who are busy with extra duties now. This includes a flattering V along the neckline, soft curls in front for height (remember the average woman) balanced by dipping curls in the back.

Then there's a poppy bob for spring, flower-like because the face-framing coiffure imitates swirling petals of the poppy. Hair is brushed forward in the front, swirled to the left in the back but encircles the head in a curly wave effect.

Dead End

BECKLEY, W. Va. (AP)—Add brief education: "I was born on Piney's creek," wrote a California resident in applying for a birth certificate, "and got my education in Raleigh county, leaving there at the age of seven. As well as I can remember my father lived across from the C. and O. depot, which is deceased."

Barbs

Memory is what steals up on you when you're listening to the average story.

Easter brings hard-boiled eggs, some of which refuse to pay for their wives' new lids.

It takes a rainstorm to make the wisdom of carrying an umbrella soak in. It won't be long now till some kids will get sunburned for swimming—and some tanned.

The song of the robin is about the only thing that's cheap these days.

Meatless Meals Provide Problems for Homemakers
By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
Wide World Features Writer
This season of meatless meals may provide some problems for the homemaker—frequently the more complain that meat substitute dishes aren't substantial, and don't hit the spot when it comes to flavor.

Here, however, are some that will appeal to any he-man, and also are in keeping with the new ideas for budget-balancing and high nutrition in war time.
Mexican Eggs: Simmer 4 minutes, 2 tablespoons each chopped onions and green peppers, in 4 tablespoons butter or margarine. Add 1 cup sliced mushrooms and 1½ cups tomatoes. Cook slowly 10 minutes, add 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon each chili powder and sugar, ½ teaspoon each paprika, white pepper and dry mustard. Add 5 beaten eggs. Cook slowly, stirring constantly, until creamy. Serve on hot buttered toast or noodles.
Eggs Benedict: Mix ½ cup sliced or grated cheese to 1½ cups white sauce, season with ½ teaspoon each minced onions, parsley and catsup. Place 1 cup cooked asparagus in buttered baking dish, top with 4 hard-cooked eggs, halved, and cover with sauce. Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven.
Clam Roll: Make up a soft biscuit dough using 2 cups flour. Pat out until 1½ inch thick. Spread with the filling: Mix 1½ cups chopped cooked clams with 1 tablespoon each chopped onions, celery and parsley. Add 3 tablespoons bread crumbs, 2½ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon paprika. Moisten

Vichy Aid to Axis Partners

Defeated France Still Remains Powerful

By JOHN GROVER
Wide World Features Writer
Defeated France, starved and sacked, still remains a force in the world's politico-military scene two years after the collapse of her armies.
Her navy is the current balance of Atlantic sea power. Naval bases still Vichy-control dare of major strategic import in the Mediterranean and Atlantic theaters. These factors explain the delicate diplomatic tug-of-war now going on to keep the French in line.
Proof of France's power to create international havoc is Japan's current success in the Southwest Pacific. Vichy France is responsible for Japan's seizure of St. Pierre and Miquelon. There are indications this diplomatic attempt to neutralize the French naval strength has been a partial failure. The British charge that Axis reinforcements came to Libya via Bizerte and Oran with French permission. Russia's official news agency alleges that 40 French war vessels are in use by the Axis now.
These charges, if true, are grave news. French strength is concentrated in the Mediterranean, close to Atlantic waters. Allied naval strength must be split between the Atlantic and Pacific, to guard the longest supply lines in military history. It would take heavy reshuffling of naval units to meet a new threat of French vessels in Axis hands.
The Toulon-Oran and Toulon-Bizerte lines to Africa are short hops. If the Axis has use of these bases, thrusts at the Middle East are made far simpler for German generals.
If Vichy cedes Dakar to the Axis—and there have been charges that German observers and technicians are in Dakar in strong force—it gives the Axis a major base on the flank of the Allied supply line to the southwest Pacific and Russia via the Gulf of Persia.
Finally, Martinique, Guadeloupe and French Guiana in the Caribbean are still loyal to Vichy. The reports of skippers on torpedoed ships in that area that their craft were downed by small, short-range subs at least makes the man in the street cast suspicious eyes at those French possessions.
The spring and summer campaigns will tell the story. If the Axis has won control over the French bases and warships, the task facing Allied admirals in the Atlantic is multiplied manifold.
